GOV. CAULFIELD GETS 'KICK' OUT OF HIS NEW JOB

Is Forced to Go Hatless While Here Yesterday

GARDEN WORK IS HOBBY

Eager to Know What He Was to Crown the Queens With

As Gov. Henry S. Caulfield came into the Tiger Hotel yesterday afternoon, his face radiated a jovial smile. His hat was off and his hair was blown, for his derby hat had met with a sad fate. He had smashed it as he stepped out of the car in which he had driven from Jefferson City. Not a store in Columbia where he could purchase another was open. He agreed with Mrs. Caulfield that since he was in Columbia he would be collegiate and go hatless.

"I enjoy being governor of this great state of Missouri. I'm never bored because there is always something new and exciting to do every day," said the governor. "Of course I get tired sometimes, like anybody else does, but I am always ready for what the day has to offer."

No sooner had the governor seated himself than the telephone began to ring and telegrams to arrive. Some had to do with the stern side of the government and others were urgent invitations to official or social functions.

Specs of Various Invitations

"The demands upon a governor are many and varied. I average an invitation a day to attend something somewhere in the state, but I never go unless I want to or feel that it is the proper thing for me as governor to do," continued Gov. Caulfield.

"I don't spend as much time on the more serious problems of the government as I would like. I feel that the state officers with whom I work and the Legislature are the finest group of men in the state, and the best to work with."

"In being governor there is a great chance for charity work in the hospitals and eleemosynary institutions. I enjoy investigating these problems personally. Some of the committees which the University, there are about 14,000 individuals in the state under my immediate supervision."

Compliments University of Missouri

Gov. Caulfield has been in Columbia many times and praised the University, saying it is one of the finest institutions in the state. The prospect of crowning the queens of the Military Ball pleased Gov. Caulfield and he was eager to know what he was to crown them with.

"We enjoy the mansion in Jefferson City, the rooms are spacious and the ceilings are about twenty feet high," said Gov. Caulfield.

He is proud of the fact that he is Missouri's only governor born in St. Louis and one of the few native sons who have been governor.

Gov. Caulfield said the only hobby he had was working in the garden. "Everyone is much kinder to me and Mrs. Caulfield than I imagined they would be," said the governor. "Yes, I get a great kick out of being governor."

FINANCE DRIVE FOR SCOUTS TO START APRIL 8

Committee Completes Plans for Columbia District

Will Select Chairman

L. E. Slate and A. A. Jeffery to Work on Publicity

Plans for the annual finance drive of the Boy Scouts of America were completed at a meeting of the finance committee of the Columbia district, last night. The drive is to be held during the week beginning April 8.

The finance committee is composed of Alex Bradford, E. F. Carter, C. L. Brewer, and Thomas McHarg, chairman. A general chairman is to be selected who will oversee the entire campaign, and direct the activities. Group chairmen who are to be in charge of the actual soliciting are also to be appointed.

Some of the committees which will function are those covering: the business district of Columbia, business houses with headquarters outside of Columbia, East Campus professors and associates, Francis Quadrangle professors and associates, the Columbia residential district, the faculties of the girls' colleges, and the business firms and other portions of the city.

The plan of raising the funds will be practically the same as in other years. The members of the finance committee will call in person on the people who are likely to offer large amounts. Large gifts are expected even before the campaign begins. A plan of reporting the success of the drive has been worked out by the members of the finance committee.

A publicity committee composed of L. E. Slate and A. A. Jeffery have been appointed to co-operate with the scout executives in planning the campaign. The committee will see that the drive is well advertised and its purposes and ambitions made public.

In commenting upon the coming campaign, C. L. Brewer, an active Scout worker for many years, made the following statement: "Scouting in Columbia in the past years has been in such a healthy condition, and so many splendid things have been done by Scouts, that we are confident that Columbia people will support the drive and their finance campaign cheerfully and generously, as they have always done."

The purpose of a finance drive is to raise money to defray expenses of maintaining a Boy Scout organization in the Columbia district. Money is also supplied for the educational program that is a part of the Boy Scout system.

A meeting of the committee on leadership and training is called for 5 o'clock at the Scout headquarters today. An active training program is to be launched in the near future. M. F. Miller is chairman of the committee.

Scientist Gives Pointers Found

in Recent Research on Sleep

"I doubt if I could find any endeavor in which people generally show as much persistence and intent as they do in trying to sleep," said Dr. H. M. Johnson, senior fellow of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research, University of Pittsburgh, and director of the Simmons investigation of sleep, in an address given in the auditorium of the Physics Building of the University last night under the auspices of the local chapter of Alpha Phi Zeta.

Dr. Johnson, who is a native of Missouri, having been born in Boone County, pointed out that the average person spends about one-third of his time in attempting to sleep and that one does not sleep nearly as long as he thinks.

"There are two doctrines of sleep. One is that it is a vicious habit and a waste of time. The other is that the lack of sleep wears down the body's vitality," Dr. Johnson seemed to favor the latter doctrine.

Explains His Work

The speaker explained the investigations that he had been instrumental in carrying out with the financial aid of the Simmons investigation subsidy. The purpose was to discover the physical tendencies of the human body while it is in the process of sleeping. An apparatus was invented to record the number of moves that individuals make while sleeping. It was discovered that the average normal person stirred at least once every ten minutes.

Dr. Johnson drew diagrams on a blackboard and slides were shown on the screen to illustrate his lecture. He defined sleep as a definite response to a stimulus. He said that the lack of sleep causes membranes inside of the cells of the body to break down and as a result the body becomes fatigued. On the other hand it is possible to over-indulge in relaxation, he said.

Some of the definite facts concerning sleep that have come from the investigation are that people stir more frequently while sleeping when they are worn out after a hard day's work. The reason for this is that the sleeper rests more easily with the changing of position and also that the skin of the body must be ventilated. People ill of some disease lie without moving for long periods because of weakness; others, because of the nature of the disease, will become restless and stir often.

Experiments Show Variations

Coffee and tea irritate the cells of the digestive organs rather than those of the nervous system. Experiments with college students have shown that the great variety of foods eaten just before retiring did not cause any extra movements of the sleepers. Middle aged people seemed to be more affected by late eating.

Th people with whom Dr. Johnson has experimented have had different lengths of periods of sleep. The middle aged men averaged seven hours. Women averaged nine hours and college boys had an eight-hour average. The speaker said that the facts vary greatly with the conditions and the individuals studied. He said that there was no set posture in which each individual should sleep. He said that he learned to endure a hard bed and will not stir as often as on a good bed on which one may sleep in any position one desires.

MAJOR TOPIC MAY BE QUESTIONNAIRE

Dr. Meyer Will Probably Explain His Views at Convention

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 26 (U.P.)—The sex questionnaire which recently rocked the University of Missouri, may become the major topic of the Southern Society of Philosophy and Psychology which convenes at the University of Kentucky here tomorrow.

Among the convention speakers will be Dr. Max Meyer, who was deposed as professor of psychology at the University of Missouri because of the questionnaire was circulated, with his sanction among both men and women students.

While nothing definite has been said, it is generally believed that Dr. Meyer will devote his talk to the questionnaire which dealt comprehensively with sex and marriage relations.

The conference originally was scheduled for the University of Missouri but the Board of Control decided to transfer it here.

Texas U. Dean Warns "Barb" Editor

AUSTIN, Tex., March 26 (U.P.)—Publishers of the Texas Barb are going ahead today with their plans to print the University of Missouri's questionnaire on sex and marriage relations. The issue of the Barb due Friday.

Editor John Woodruff, University of Texas student, has been summoned by Dean Moore in an effort to halt the publication. That, however, is now in the hands of non-student members of the Barb.

Dean Moore said today that Woodruff has been notified that he would be held responsible as a student, for the publication of the questionnaire in the Barb.

This notice was given, Dr. Moore said, on the ground that another university has been caused great embarrassment by the matter and the University of Texas does not intend to be drawn into it.

Dean Moore said that at his conference with Woodruff no claim was made by Woodruff that the publication was beyond his control.

Barb Not to Print Questionnaire

AUSTIN, Tex., March 26 (U.P.)—The Texas Barb will appear on the University of Texas campus tomorrow minus the Missouri University sex questionnaire, publishers said this afternoon. Instead the paper will tell why the article has been withheld.

Editor John Woodruff, University of Texas student, was notified that he would be expelled and that all credits he has earned at the university would be cancelled if the questionnaire appears.

MEXICO REBELS IN RETREAT ON TWO FRONTIERS

Insurgents Evacuate Jimenez in North, Says Report

ARE LEAVING MAZATLAN

Agrarian Bands Attack Railway Line, May Hinder Flight

JUAREZ, March 26 (U.P.)—Unofficial information received here today said advance guards of Gen. Calles' federal army and outposts of Gen. Escobar's rebel forces clashed last night at Jimenez, a town that has been intermittently firing since.

The reports said a battle was expected at Jimenez today.

WASHINGTON, March 26 (U.P.)—Mexican rebels are being driven from Mazatlan, information received by the State Department from Ambassador Morrow today.

In the state of Sinaloa where the rebel attack on Mazatlan failed, rebels were reported withdrawing to Culiacan, and on the north central front they are reported to have evacuated Jimenez.

Agrarian bands are reported to have attacked the main railway line between Culiacan and San Blas, in western Mexico, but whether this would interfere with the rebel retreat was not known.

While there was a possibility of an engagement between the federals and the main body of the rebels at Jimenez, in southern Chihuahua, it was suggested here that the rebels would follow the tactics adopted at Torreon when they withdrew without offering battle.

Millions of Mexicans believe the rebels are more likely to make a stand further north in Chihuahua, perhaps in the vicinity of Chihuahua City, than at Jimenez.

Reports to the State Department indicate the rebellion now is localized in the states of Sonora, Chihuahua and the northern two-thirds of Sinaloa.
